Louis Butkovich is the President of Triton Services, Inc. Louis started in the environmental consulting field in 1990 after obtaining a B.S. in Geology from Eastern Illinois University. After leaving consulting and starting a service company, Louis became involved with polyurea liners in 2003. Polyurea is a spray applied seamless liner that is used in a wide variety of industrial and environmental applications. During the last 12 years Louis has traveled the country performing an array of environmental and industrial liner installations. Projects have included: secondary containment, spill prevention, encapsulation (including nuclear), barrier membranes/engineering controls, vapor intrusion barriers, retention pond liners, and repair of other seamed liners.
